JUAN MARTÍN DIAZ

OUR PROS

GABI MEANA

Juan Martín Diaz, born in Mar del Plata, Argentina, relocated to Spain where he quickly rose to prominence, becoming the world's top player.

Juan Martín’s unwavering passion for padel has kept him competing to the age of 46, where he remained a Top 30 player globally, regularly appearing on major Center Courts worldwide.

Gabi Meana, born in Northern Spain, moved to the US to play tennis and began leading coaching programs and managing high-end racket sports clubs across Florida.

As the padel community grew, Gabi dedicated time to teaching beginners, helping them become padel enthusiasts.

MEDIA COVERAGE

“Located on an island of reclaimed land beneath the MacArthur Causeway, the site of Reserve Padel is largely raw. Unkept grass grows on vacant lots. There’s somewhat haphazard parking. And the vibe is pretty industrial. Yet check in, and all that kind of melts away as the Magic City’s gemstone skyline comes into frame: Reserve—Miami’s toniest club built to serve the world’s fastest-growing racket sport—is a waterside idyll with million-dollar views”
